What's New

New Website Launch Marks Latest Success for Think Dutchess

As part of our continued rebranding and commitment to positively showcasing all that Dutchess County has to offer, Think Dutchess is proud to reveal the new www.thinkdutchess.com.

Similar to the Think Dutchess Magazine released last month, the new website features the most up-to-date information on the region's demographics, workforce, educational institutions and top employers and industries. Along with stunning visuals and original videos, the website also highlights successful startups and small businesses that have chosen to locate in Dutchess County.

Dutchess County Airport Rebrands

as Hudson Valley Regional Airport

Dutchess County Airport has a new name to better suit the airport's position as a general aviation hub: Hudson Valley Regional Airport.

Thanks to its prime location and first-rate incentives like START-UP NY, where companies can operate tax-free for 10 years, Hudson Valley Regional Airport is a perfect home for growing aviation companies. The airport has already attracted several businesses, including AAG-Sikorsky-Lockheed Martin and FlightLevel Aviation, which have partnered with SUNY Dutchess to provide a new Airframe and Power Plant program at new hangar facilities coming soon.

And thanks to low landing fees, top-notch infrastructure and proximity to NYC, the airport is an ideal choice for business executives wanting fast access to East Coast hubs.

Dutchess County Advances Business-Friendly Agenda in 2017

In a State of the County address earlier this month, Dutchess County Executive Marc Molinaro revealed the county's strategic focus on pro-business policies to drive economic growth.

Top priorities include maintaining low taxes, streamlining processes for new development projects, strengthening promotion of regional businesses and further investing in the county's educational resources in order to advance the county's skilled workforce.
